

Militarism and Gender in the Pacific global contexts, feminist questions and analysis a public lecture by Professor Cynthia Enloe

Clark University, Massachusetts

Also announcing the inaugural White Poppy Peace Scholarships

Friday 30 October, 6.00pm - 7.30pm

Hunter Council Chamber (HU204)
Hunter Building, Kelburn Parade Gates 1 and 2, Kelburn

No door charge but seating is limited so RSVPs are essential

Cynthia Enloe is Research Professor in the Department of International Development, Community, and Environment and Women's Studies at Clark University. Her feminist teaching and research has focused on the interplay of women's politics in the national and international arenas, with special attention to how women's labor is made cheap in globalised factories and how women's emotional and physical labor has been used to support governments' war-waging policies--and how many women have tried to resist both of those efforts. Author of twelve books including Bananas, Beaches and Bases: Making Feminist Sense of International Politics (2000), Maneuvers: The International Politics of Militarizing Women's Lives (2004), and Globalization and Militarism: Feminists Make the Link (2007), her new book Nimo's War, Emma's War: Making Feminist Sense of the Iraq War is forthcoming in spring 2010.

Proudly presented by the Programme in Pacific Studies in Va'aomanū Pasifika in partnership with the Programme in Political Science and International Relations, and in association with Peace Movement Aotearoa and the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom

Contact Diana Felagai, tel (04) 463 5830 or email diana.felagai@vuw.ac.nz

